Travelers Can Get a Free Workout Waiting for Their Flight at PHL

Fitness Zone provides complimentary use of equipment at Philadelphia International Airport

PHILADELPHIA – Travelers passing through Philadelphia International Airport (PHL) this summer can keep up with their workout routines and try out exercise equipment at the new Fitness Zone. The new fitness area, accessible to ticketed passengers, opened this week as part of Just Plane Fun, the Airport's annual summer-long customer appreciation program.

The Fitness Zone, currently located in Terminal D at Gate D-4, offers 4 sitNcycles, 2 Smooth XBikes, and 2 elliptical exercise bikes. The Fitness Zone will be moved to various locations in the Airport throughout the summer. Travelers can check the weekly Just Plane Fun schedule on the monitors in the Airport and on phl.org for the location of the Fitness Zone.

The Airport partnered with Smooth Fitness, one of the largest online retailers of home fitness equipment, to provide the equipment in the Fitness Zone as well as the sitNcycles available to customers in the B/C Connector mall. Smooth Fitness, based in suburban Radnor, Pa., manufactures its own line of treadmills, elliptical trainers, exercise bikes and home gyms.

"The Fitness Zone is ideal for anyone who needs to get in a quick workout, wants to try out new fitness equipment, or just have some fun while waiting to board their flight," said Airport CEO Mark Gale. "We appreciate the traveling public's business and we are pleased to offer our customers this exciting amenity as part of our Just Plane Fun customer appreciation program."

Philadelphia International Airport is owned and operated by the City of Philadelphia. The Airport is a self-sustaining entity that operates without the use of local tax dollars. It is one of the largest economic engines in Pennsylvania, generating an estimated $14.4 billion in spending to the regional economy and accounting for more than 141,000 jobs.
